

“Globulizing” the Hospital Ward

Homœopathic Hospitals and Medical Legitimacy in 19th Century London and Madrid

Felix Stefan von Rechwitz

Felix Stefan von Rechwitz
"Globulizing" the Hospital Ward

Quellen und Studien zur Homöopathieggeschichte, Band 24

Herausgegeben vom Institut für Geschichte der Medizin

der Robert Bosch Stiftung

Leiter: Prof. Dr. Robert Jütte

“Globulizing” the Hospital Ward

Homœopathic Hospitals and Medical Legitimacy in 19th Century London and Madrid

Felix Stefan von Reiszwitz

Winner of the Hans Walz Prize

KVC Verlag
NATUR UND MEDIZIN e. V.
Am Deimelsberg 36, 45276 Essen
Tel.: (0201) 5630570
Fax: (0201) 56305 60
www.kvc-verlag.de

von Reiswitz, Felix Stefan

“Globulizing” the Hospital Ward – Homœopathic Hospitals and Medical Legitimacy in 19th Century London and Madrid

Quellen und Studien zur Homöopathieggeschichte, Band 24
Herausgegeben vom Institut für Geschichte der Medizin
der Robert Bosch Stiftung
Band 1–13 (1995–2005): Karl F. Haug Verlag Stuttgart
ab Band 14: KVC Verlag Essen

ISBN 978-3-945150-70-2

© KVC Verlag – NATUR UND MEDIZIN e. V., Essen 2017

Das Werk mit allen Teilen ist urheberrechtlich geschützt. Jede Verwertung außerhalb der Bestimmungen des Urheberrechts ist ohne schriftliche Genehmigung des Verlages unzulässig und strafbar. Kein Teil des Werkes darf in irgendeiner Form ohne schriftliche Genehmigung des Verlages reproduziert werden. Geschützte Warennamen werden nicht besonders kenntlich gemacht. Aus dem Fehlen eines entsprechenden Hinweises kann also nicht geschlossen werden, dass es sich um einen freien Warennamen handelt.

Umschlaggestaltung: eye-d Designbüro, Essen
Druck: Union Betriebs-GmbH, Rheinbach

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements	1
Abbreviations	3
Introduction	5
i.1 Nomenclature and ‘Background’ Concepts of Homœopathic History	6
i.2 Historiography of British and Spanish Homœopathy	9
i.3 Historiography of other Homœopathic Hospitals.....	11
i.4 Historiography of the London and Madrid Homœopathic Hospitals	13
i.5 ‘Professional’ and ‘Lay’ Homœopathy.....	16
i.6 Charity and the Voluntary Hospital	18
i.7 Medical Professionalization	19
i.8 Sources	20
i.9 Structure of the Thesis’s Chapters	23
Chapter 1: The London Homœopathic Hospital: Precedents, Foundation and Early History, 1833–1898	25
1.1 London’s ‘Homœopathic Precedents’ before 1849	25
1.1.1 Homœopathy’s circuitous route to Britain, 1833–1837	26
1.1.2 Curie’s Homœopathic Institutions in London, 1837–1853.....	31
1.2 Frederick Quin, Founder of the London Homœopathic Hospital	35
1.2.1 Quin’s Early Biography and First Homœopathic Contact, 1799–1832	36
1.2.2 Quin’s Return to England, 1832–1843.....	44
1.3 The Foundation and Work of the London Homœopathic Hospital	47
1.3.1 The “British Homœopathic Society,” 1844–1849.....	47
1.3.2 The First London Homœopathic Hospital, 1849–1857.....	50
1.3.3 The New London Homœopathic Hospital, 1859–1876.....	59
1.3.4 Rebuilding and Expanding the Hospital, 1876–1911.....	69

Chapter 2: Instituto Homeopático y Hospital de San José: Precedents, Foundation and early History, 1829–1898..... 75

2.1	Homœopathic Beginnings in Spain, 1829–1843.....	75
2.2	José Nuñez Pernía, Founder of Madrid’s Instituto Homeopático y Hospital de San José	81
2.2.1	Nuñez’s Early Biography and First Homœopathic Contact, 1805–1843.....	81
2.2.2	Nuñez and the Spanish Doctors, 1843–1845	84
2.3	The Long and Difficult Foundation of Nuñez’s Hospital, 1845–1879.....	86
2.3.1	The “Sociedad Hahnemanniana Matritense,” 1845–1847	86
2.3.2	Academic Ambitions and Royal Decrees, 1847–1850	88
2.3.3	Nuñez, the “Sociedad Hahnemanniana Matritense” and Madrid’s First Homœopathic Dispensary, 1850–1865.....	91
2.3.4	A Redoubling of Efforts: The Final Royal Decree, 1865–1867.....	93
2.3.5	A Homœopathic Hospital by Private Initiative, 1867–1873.....	94
2.3.6	The First Spanish Homœopathic Hospital, 1873–1879.....	97
2.3.7	Nuñez’s Difficult Legacy: the Instituto Homeopático y Hospital de San José after its Founder’s death, 1879–1898.....	103

Chapter 3: Homœopathic Hospital Demographics: Staff, Volunteers and Patients in London and Madrid..... 111

3.1	Hospital Demographics, a General Introduction.....	111
3.2	Medical and Principal Officers of the 19 th -Century London Homœopathic Hospital	112
3.3	Nursing Staff at the London Homœopathic Hospital	118
3.4	The London Homœopathic Hospital’s Lady Visitors	123
3.5	A Demographic Survey of Patients at the LHH.....	127
3.6	Medical and Principal Officers of Madrid’s Instituto Homeopático y Hospital de San José	133
3.7	The “Servants of Mary” and “Daughters of Charity”: Nursing Congregations at the Instituto Homeopático y Hospital de San José.....	135
3.8	Informal Auditors: The “Junta de Señoras”	140
3.9	Demographic Survey of Patients at the IHHSJ.....	143

Chapter 4: Statistical Evidence of 19th-Century
Homœopathic Hospital: Patients and Pathologies Treated in London and Madrid 146

4.1 Hospital Statistics: Introductory Remarks and Caveats146

4.2 Indicators of Homœopathic Hospitals' Acceptance Among their Local Target Population: A Quantitative Patient Survey152

4.2.1 Patient Numbers at the LHH.....152

4.2.2 Patient Numbers at the IHHSJ.....157

4.3 Pathologies Treated in Homœopathic Hospital Wards164

4.3.1 Diseases Treated at the LHH, 1850–1886168

4.3.2 Diseases Treated at the IHHSJ, 1878–1886176

4.4 Interpretation of Statistical Results for both LHH and IHHSJ180

4.5 Surgery and the Homœopathic Hospital186

4.5.1 Surgery and the LHH.....188

4.5.2 Surgery and the IHHSJ.....191

Chapter 5: Educational and Ancillary Activities of the London and Madrid Homœopathic Hospitals 195

5.1 Ancillary Activities at the LHH195

5.1.1 English Medical Education and the Hospital:
A Brief Survey196

5.1.2 Medical Education at the LHH199

5.1.3 The London Homœopathic Hospital Nursing Institute208

5.1.4 The London Homœopathic Hospital and the Homœopathic Press213

5.1.5 London's Homœopathic Library218

5.1.6 Other Activities In and Around the LHH.....222

5.2 Ancillary Activities at the IHHSJ225

5.2.1 A Brief Survey of Medicine, Medical Education and the Hospital in Nineteenth-Century Madrid225

5.2.2 Medical Education at the IHHSJ230

5.2.3 The Homœopathic Press in Spain, Prior and Contemporary to the IHHSJ.....237

5.2.4 A Homœopathic Library for Madrid244

5.2.5 Other Activities at the IHHSJ247

Conclusion	249
c.1 Founders, Networks and Supporters	249
c.1.1 The Importance of Leaders and Social Networks.....	250
c.1.2 Homœopathic Networks and Supportive Associations	252
c.2 Foundation and Roles of the Homœopathic Hospital	253
c.2.1 Homœopathic Hospital Foundation in London and Madrid	253
c.2.2 Homœopathic Hospitals as Vehicles for ‘Alternative’ Medical Careers.....	254
c.2.3 “Homœopathic” Nursing.....	256
c.3 Patients, Diseases and Treatment in London and Madrid	257
c.4 Diseases, Treatment and Pragmatic ‘Eclecticism’	258
c.5 Laypersons and Homœopathic Hospitals	260
c.6 Homœopathic Hospitals as Nexuses of Wider Activities.....	261
c.7 Summary	263
 Bibliography	 267
Primary Sources	267
Secondary Sources.....	286
Tertiary Sources	296
Details of Archival and Rare Book Repositories	297
 Appendices	 299
Appendix 1: Original Language Quotes	299
Appendix 2: Homœopathic Dispensaries and Institutions in Greater London between 1853 and 1875 (excluding the LHH and the Hahnemann Hospital).....	303
Appendix 3: Architectural Drawings and Illustrations of the London Homœopathic Hospital, 1895.	312
Appendix 4: Chronological list of Homœopathic Periodicals Published in 19 th -Century London and Madrid.....	320
 Illustrative Material.....	 327